Is searching for a NYS Certified Agriculture Educator

About the School District

Springville-Griffith Institute Central School District is a rural public school district located approximately 45 minutes southeast of Buffalo, New York, within the southern tip of Erie County. The district is surrounded by an environment of wooded hillsides, stream valleys and productive farmland. Nestled in the foothills of the Allegheny mountains, the school serves approximately 1,700 students.

Qualities and Skills

We are looking for a full-time educator to broaden and enhance our already solid Agriculture program for our high school students in grades 9-12. The NYS certified Agriculture educator should have the knowledge and skills necessary to teach effectively and have an understanding of concepts, principles and methods related to agricultural education so that students are prepared or college ready for a wide range of careers in agriculture or other agriculture-related occupations. The successful candidate should have a commitment to curriculum development, professional development, teamwork, and a strong understanding of FFA, with the ability and desire to commit to the school, local, state and national chapters.
